

VIRGO

2012 Monthly Forecasts

January

Improvements in your love relationships and partnerships are likely this month, dear Virgo. A partner is easier to understand from the 7th forward, and love dynamics are more direct and straightforward from the 18th. Increased activity on the home front is likely now, and you can use this energy positively by working on reorganizing, renovating, or otherwise improving your domestic life. If you don't harness and manage the excess energy, however, you might encounter resistance or strife with family. Some opposition to your plans on the job is possible this month if your heart is elsewhere. You have more confidence for pushing forward with creative ideas that you've been keeping to yourself. Finances improve after the 18th. You are clearer about how to spend and save money effectively.

February

February is an excellent month for your relationships, dear Virgo. You are especially willing to please, and partners (or potential ones) are attentive and romantic. Your openness to partnering and tolerance of others are qualities that will help improve your relationships many times over this year. Opportunities to connect and for a happy, productive relationship are abundant. Work matters are strong and mostly straightforward, having recovered well from any complications encountered near the beginning of 2012. The 13-17 and 27-28 are especially strong days this month.

March

Strong energy for love is with you this month, dear Virgo. Whether it's about reconciliation, fixing problems, enhancing a partnership, or attracting a new relationship, the cosmos are lending a helping hand. The 14-17 brings pleasant surprises in love. Complications in your intimate life or with shared finances begin to disappear this month, and you are beginning to see some real progress. While March is not the most energetic period of the year for you, many of you will be feeling revitalized through the support and generosity of others.

April

A very good month for you financially, and the holiday turns out to be pretty easy to deal with. A spouse or lover is having a hard time dealing with the pressures of their work and are reluctant to share this with you. You should do your best to give them a shoulder to cry on, and meaningful suggestions for them. A nightmare that you have this month will actually be a foretelling of something very good for you. Analyze carefully all of your dreams.

May

Business relationships are strong this month, dear Virgo. You have that extra "edge" when it comes to appealing to superiors as well as co-workers. A change of residence, a working partnership, an opportunity to work from home, or an alliance with an old family friend or co-worker could be in the offing. Reticence about changes in a close personal relationship is something you have been struggling with for some time, and now is a good time to examine what is holding you back. New travel or educational plans are likely mid-month.

June

Work matters are in the forefront for you in June, dear Virgo. You're especially busy and often turned to for advice and requests. You face any problem with energy, confidence, and courage, but can be a little impatient if things aren't moving fast enough. Sudden developments in the financial or emotional support you receive are likely now, and they seem promising. A partner might enjoy good news on the financial front. Some of you are realizing a long-term goal of working from home. A love relationship requires some attention and adjustment this month.

July

July should be a strong month for you, dear Virgo. Making new connections, or cementing existing ones, is in store. The 11th is a great time for making a wish and coming up with an exciting new long-term plan or idea for the future. From the 10th, your charm and personal appeal skyrockets. A new look or manner is likely to be very successful now. If you want others to see things from your perspective, this is an ideal time. You have energy to spare and have few problems asserting your desires and needs. Fortunately, others are listening. Pressures are lifting from the 21st, and you are feeling stronger, more in control, and more mature as well. Friends are in need of attention but supportive. While it's a good month for receiving gifts or bonuses, there can be some money worries. Plans or backing that have had you feeling enthusiastic may not look as promising as they did last month, but the good news is that adjusting your outlook to a more realistic one will bring rewards down the road.

August

August is a strong period for reviewing the past year and aiming to put the past behind you, dear Virgo. It's not the time for major decision making or goal setting, but good for ridding yourself of problems that have been weighing you down. Pay attention to your intuition and even your dreams. Next month, you can make a new start. Financial matters are of concern in August, but money is coming in and going out in perhaps equal quantity. As such, although there are ups and downs, you end the month on even ground. You're able to come up with some especially creative money-making ideas this month. While it's not the right time to throw yourself into a new project, you might want to formulate initial plans. From the 20th and until September 12th, your ruler, Mercury, is retrograde. This points to a period of natural withdrawal on some level. It's a good time to take in rather than push forward with new plans. The 24th brings a partnership matter to light. Pay special attention to what a partner or close friend has to say.

September

You are brimming with creative ideas this month, dear Virgo. Being honest and communicative boosts your reputation and appeal in September. The New Moon on the 8th begins a month-long cycle in which you are noticed, personally powerful, and more confident. Career matters are strong, especially after the 12th. Success in the communications industry is indicated. Financial boosts are possible on the 4-5th and 12th. Love is improved and clearer from mid-month. Sudden opportunities with or through a partner can arise. A surprising circumstance or sudden change of attitude can occur and jolt you out of your usual routine when it comes to relating to others on a one-to-one level. Some of you might enter into a new partnership quickly. A working partnership could be involved, or an alliance with an old family friend or co-worker might occur now. Some of you could find opportunities to work from home. For those looking, a job offer can come your way. A matter that was previously hidden can come to light and help you to see more clearly.

November

You are in a good position this month to enliven romance in an existing partnership, or to strengthen ties with a romantic partner, dear Virgo. For singles, meeting a special person is very possible, although it is unlikely to lead to a long-term relationship or coupling. Investments in stocks and other speculative matters could earn nice profits, although care should be exercised. You may find great joy and reward in your creative projects and hobbies, and could discover a new creative talent you never knew you had. Social engagements abound in November.

October

You are especially concerned with your finances this month, dear Virgo. It's an excellent period for reviewing expenses and making budgets. While you could feel a pinch, this only prompts you to take charge of your practical affairs. News of a higher-paying job or pay increase is quite possible in October. A partner's income will be of special interest around the 22nd. Your mind is very busy with ideas this month and you have extra energy for challenging mental tasks. However, fellow students or acquaintances may not be very helpful right now.

December

You won't have much time for your mate this month. Make arrangements to spend quality time together. You can make progress professionally. You need to pamper yourself for a change. Your luckiest events this month will occur on a Wednesday. A scurry of activity in and around the home or with family is in store for you this month, dear Virgo. You are busy with preparations, repairs, and re-organizing and enjoying every minute of it! It's a fabulous time to get your nest in order and functioning smoothly. The last week of December is positively intense for romance and intimacy. An exciting proposal or opportunity regarding love, recreation, and creativity comes your way. The holidays for you in 2011 are likely to be especially magical and memorable. Love is in the air!
