

LIBRA

2012 Monthly Forecasts

January

Your intellect is energized this month, dear Libra. Learning, sharing knowledge, and communicating with more confidence all figure strongly in November. At times you can speak quite rashly or you could find that you're impatient with slowness or passivity in others. Use this increased mental energy productively. You might present your ideas with much enthusiasm and confidence, which can increase the likelihood that they're accepted and admired. From the 18th forward, you are more decisive and direct in your dealings with others. Work also improves and any work matters that have been stalling begin to move forward. Finances are a strong focus, and around the 21st, you might settle some debts or obtain a loan. The pace of the month is very busy and dynamic.

February

While life has been filled with pressures and perhaps setbacks for many of you recently, dear Libra, the first three weeks of February bring great opportunities for recreation and enjoyment. Romantic new beginnings are possible, but keep your eye out for deception or self-deception. Complications with a partner or friend continue this month, and the only thing to do now is to give them space. If you find that you're only going through the motions, let time pass before making any decisions. The 7-8 and 13-15 are potentially magical days for you.

March

You continue to work hard and get your practical affairs into order in March, dear Libra. Many of you are living up to your New Year's resolutions and paying more attention to health and fitness routines. Changes are in the air for your personal relationships this month, and you will be thoroughly enjoying the increased clarity. After some months of not really knowing where you stand in a friendship or partnership, matters become clearer and the people in your life more straightforward. The 7-8 and 21-22 are stronger days for opportunities.

April

A relative opens old wounds when they go through some of your old belongings. Try not to get angry because there was no harm intended. A walk down memory lane might be good for you at this point in your life, but don't get wrapped up in the past. Take some time to share your wisdom with someone who is very young and may be about to make a serious change in their life. What you say will be very important and have deep meaning for them.

May

May is a sociable month for you, dear Libra, especially from the 21st forward. You are making exciting new contacts and reconnecting with old friends. You are keen on sharing your personal philosophies with others and are especially intrigued with other points of view. Restlessness with routine is sure to get you out and about. Financial matters begin to clear up mid-month. Some nagging health or work problems need attention, especially those revolving around poor communication. Conditions in your close partnerships may begin to feel confining now, and demand a major overhaul.

June

Sudden opportunities with or through a partner arise this month, dear Libra. A surprising circumstance or sudden change of attitude can occur and jolt you out of your usual routine when it comes to relationships. Some of you might enter into a new partnership quickly, or meet a special someone with whom you have strong intellectual or communicative ties, and the desire to take it to the next level is strong. Domestic matters require special attention in the last week of June. Finding a balance between your professional and personal lives will be essential.

July

Career matters are powerful this month, dear Libra. Changes in goals, plans, and priorities may be necessary. Taking the lead or receiving more attention might initially feel uncomfortable, but as soon as you begin to believe in yourself and have confidence in your abilities, others will return the respect. From November 2009 to April 2012, issues of independence and security surfaced, bringing some tension and indecisiveness to your life. These matters re-emerge now and demand more attention. You may be seeing circumstances for their flaws more than their overall worth, and this process is necessary in order for you to eventually get to a more balanced and realistic place. Tensions in relationships and family life are possible as you re-examine your position. Love is still exciting, but some problems may be revealed that keep you grounded in your expectations. The 26th could bring a romantic revelation. The last few days of July bring much energy and initiative, and will carry forward into August.

August

August is a month of much social activity for you, dear Libra. You are especially charming and a partner is absolutely in your corner. The 20th brings particularly good energy for love. Although there is a competitive feel to your relationships, this only serves to energize you and to keep love stimulating. New responsibilities are coming to light and you are ready to take charge. In fact, you are especially assertive this month, but at the same time, blessed with the ability to go after what you want without ruffling anyone's feathers. You have just the right combination of natural charm and confidence this month that others can't help but take notice. While the month promises to be pleasurable in many ways, Saturn is solidly back in your sign, reminding you of your responsibilities and the need to structure your life. Do whatever you can to straighten out your life and discipline yourself. Avoiding responsibilities and cutting corners will not serve you well. Work or health matters that have been brewing come to light around the 24th.

September

Personal magnetism continues to run high in September, dear Libra. Until the 8th, Venus continues to journey through your sign, boosting your appeal, charm, and tact. Until the 14th, Mars continues to add energy, initiative, intensity, and drive to your nature. Although both planets move out of your sign this month, they are moving rather close to one another, and this keeps partnering exciting throughout the month. Nevertheless, until the 22nd, you are in a yearly cycle of spiritual renewal, closing projects and paths in your life that no longer serve a good purpose. You take more down time than usual. The 22nd brings a yearly cycle of personal power that lasts until October 23rd. Home and family life improves this month, as do financial matters. The 4-5th and 12th are especially strong days for personal magnetism. You'll find others are looking upon you especially favourably. Opportunities and new insights come in the areas of work or health. The temptation to break out of lifeless aspects of a job is strong, and some of you will be feeling such inner restlessness that you feel you need to make a radical change.

October

You are coming out of your shell this month, clearer than ever about wanting to make personal changes. You have the gift of gab in October, and your improved communications skills will serve you well. However, from the 7th forward, others are not always picking up the right signals, so be as clear as you can in your dealings. You have great energy for making money, but problems with purchases made, or changes of mind when it comes to spending, are very likely. Think twice about making big purchases, particularly of comfort or luxury items.

November

The ball is in someone else's court for the most part this month, dear Libra. Flattery will get you everywhere in November, as opposed to forcing your agenda on others, which can surely backfire. Just use it wisely! However, professionally you are feeling independent and ambitious. Working from home could be an option this month. One-to-one relating appeals to you more than group activities or more casual connections, and the last week of November brings romantic opportunities. You are especially willing to compromise, negotiate, and make peace. Physical energy may be on the low side.

December

You will meet some interesting people if you attend promotional functions. Social activities will be satisfying. You may need to lend an ear to an old friend. Confusion regarding other people's money and joint ventures will come to a head. Your luckiest events this month will occur on a Monday. An especially busy mostly pleasantly so period is in store for you in the first three weeks of December, dear Libra. It can get a little hectic, with many errands to run, more ideas than you can realistically implement, and plenty of contact with friends, siblings, and neighbours. It's a time of networking, and you're coming across very smoothly. The last week of the month (and year!) is revealing and perhaps intense for family matters. From the 7th forward, great energy for attraction, entertainment, and romance is with you.
